What Did You Expect? (Redesign): Redeeming the Realities ... The reason What Did You Expect? is so powerful is not because Paul Tripp is a marriage expert with tips and tricks to fix your problems, it's because his teaching is drenched in the gospel and the Word of God. This honest book will help you see yourself and your spouse in a new light as it shows you who Jesus is and how to connect his redeeming grace to the daily realities of your marriage. What Did You Expect?: Redeeming the Realities of Marriage ... What Did You Expect? presents six practical commitments that give shape and momentum to such a lifestyle. These commitments, which include honestly facing sin, weakness, and failure; willingness to change; and embodying Christ's love, will equip couples to develop a thriving, grace-based marriage in all circumstances and seasons of their relationship. Which of the two sentences is correct? 'What did you do ... 'What did you do?' is, on the other hand, is a question and not a nominal clause. It is formed like this: start with the prototypical sentence (subject verb object): So in summary, "what did you do?" is a question, whereas "what you did" is a special kind of sentence called a nominal clause.

What Did You Expect? | Paul Tripp At some point you need something sturdier than romance. You need something deeper than shared interests and mutual attraction. You need changed expectations, you need radical commitments, and, most importantly, you need grace.

I Know What You Did Last Summer (1997) - IMDb "I Know What You Did Last Summer" joins "The Spy Who Shagged Me" and "The Cook, the Thief, His Wife and Her Lover" as being yet another film that doesn't even come close to living up to its inspired title. All are bad enough to make me angry at the thought of a good title being squandered.
